VENUS AND THE CAT. ✓

Scene opens with an old farmer washing clothes. His cat begins to annoy him by rubbing against his leg. The farmer kicks him away. Cat returns and he kicks him away again. Cat returns and farmer becomes angry, takes cat and throws him down well. Cat returns through water hydrant. Farmer blindfolds cat, puts it in safe and throws the safe down well. Farmer goes back to his washing. Cat returns with safe in wheelbarrow, still blindfolded. Farmer kicks cat out window.

Cat calls on Venus to help her, then says, "I wish I were a fair damsel that I may vamp the man I love." Venus comes sailing along in cloud and hears cat's wish and straightway changes cat into a woman. The woman vamps the farmer and they are married, and seemingly live happy. Sometime later, Venus comes sailing back and, wondering whether in changing the cat into a woman, she also changed the woman's nature, so she sends a mouse down in front of the woman. The woman sees the mouse and begins to chase it. Venus is horrified and changes the woman back to a cat again.

Moral: What is bred in the bone will out in the flesh.

Modern Adaptation: Russia married to Bolshevism. Starvation comes upon them in the shape of a cloud. Bolshevism shows his true nature when lightning hits him and then he turns into a horrible demon.
